The electronic communications and media sector offers substantial opportunities as well as formidable risks. Significant public interest and regulatory oversight add an extra layer of complexity to the challenges of rapidly evolving technologies, consumer behavior-driven life cycles, convergence, and an ever-changing value-chain.

BRG provides advisory and expert services to a wide range of participants in the sector. Our Telecom, Media, and Technology (TMT) experts work with industry players, their counsel, governments, and regulators across the world, providing insight and robust, independent analysis. We tailor our services to each client’s specific requirements, applying our deep industry experience and advanced economic and analytical skills to effectively address the regulatory, business, and policy issues they face.

Today’s uncertain economic and financial environment means that it is more important than ever to conduct thorough and sophisticated analysis to understand different possible market outcomes and manage risk through foresight and insight. Our independence and rigor add confidence to complex board decisions, credibility to regulatory submissions, and authority to expert opinions.
